......... Carrie and Annie,

The missionary schooner Carrie and Annie, after a long and stormy voyage from Ponape, Caroline Islands, arived yesterday afternoon, ending ruise which began at this port August mands the Carrie and Annie, was acmore than her fill, she says, of cruisers. The elements celebrated the new year by combining in an effort to send he little schooner to the bottom. She shipped many seas and her crew had to work hard to weather the gale, but the little craft came through intact.

During the Carrie and Annie's stay at Ponape the German gunboat Condor arrived there on its way to New among Germany's South Sea possesmassacred is said to have been the oldest missionary in the South Seas. The Condor was going to call at Yap for coal and then proceed to New Quinea and there shoot up a few vilages to inspire the savage inhabitants with respect for the Kaiser and reverence for the dead missionaries' reli-

The Carrie and Annie carried from here stores for the missionary stations in the Carolines. She came home in ballast. H. H. Moore of Pittsburg was a passenger on the Carrie and Annie for the round trip.-S. F. Call.

Concord Baised.

The schooner Concord, which was ought by Alex. Lyle after it had sunk it its moorings in Naval Row, has been raised and is now on the marine railway being repaired. Aside from sive: some open seams the vessel is in very good condition and with the present verhauling she will be as good as ever.
